"This plan is known as the Citizen's Educational Project," it con tinued. "It was established while President Eisenhower was president of Columbia."

The students will work closely with the Red Cross and will use posters, tags, signs, radio, newspaper, automobile signs and possibly television. In addition they will send notices to parents of other grade school children telling of the blood recruitment program

"The day the Bloodmobile arrives in Harrisburg we will offer our services as baby sitters and some of our parents will use their automobiles to carry persons to give their blood," the students said. A questionnaire also will be used to learn people's ideas about the blood program and a contest among four homerooms will be held to see which can secure the most donors.

Plans call for a thermometer on the school lawn to show the progress of the campaign.

"We want Saline county to fill its blood quota to assure every citizen of the county an adequate supply of blood if an occasion arises," the statement concluded. "One of our posters states: 'If You Need Blood, Be Sure It's on

Political 'Cycles'

Editorial - BY BRUCE BIOSSAT There used to be some attractive and very neat theories to explain the ebb and flow of political fortune for the major parties in this country. Then the facts began to confound the theories.

A favorite notion was that there were cycles of conservative and liberal tenure in office, with the people swinging like a predictable pendulum from one to the other.

The early years of the Roosevelt regime seemed to lend credence to the theory, coming as they did in sequel to a long conservative Republican stand.

But thereafter things grew less neat. With changes in the complexion of Congress and with the approach of World War II, the Roosevelt regime itself took on a considerable tinge of conservatism. In 1938 the New Deal died as an active, moving force.

But the Democrats rode on in the saddle, through the war, thru ment, until finally they were un. a phone call from Sen. Another Democrat came to Congress in the same year that West Virginia first sent Matt Neely to Washington-a young congressman from Texas named Sam Rayburn. That was 1913, one year before the assassination of Archduke Franz Ferdinand in the Balkan city of Sarajevo was to touch off the bloodiest war so far in history. Neely and Rayburn served for many years together. Came the New Deal and Sam became a New Dealer, sponsored some of its most important legislation. But while Matt Neely was turning a deaf ear to political contributions to influence his vote on the Gas Bill, Speaker Rayburn was promoting political contributions to help congressmen who would vote for the Gas Bill. And today Sam is opposing any penetrating probe of the very same New Deal agencies he helped create-especially the Federal Communications Commission. It's reported repeatedly on Capital Hill, though denied officially, that the real reason for Sam's backaway is a backstage Republican-Democratic deal. The Republicans will produce enough votes to pass the Harris Gas Bill in which Mr. Sam is so vitally interested. The Democrats in turn will bush up the investigation of Republican influence peddling and corruption in the Federal Communications Commission in which the Speaker was once so vitally interested.

enough to merely obey posted speed limits. Speed should be governed by conditions. This is a signal for you to slow down at sundown because darkness is a condition calling for caution.

Some motorists are unaware of the danger of wearing tinted glasses at night. Such glasses reduce a driver's vision.

Motorists should be on the alert at this time of the year for pedestrians and for vehicles without lights or dim lights. A simple rule which many a motorist forgets is not to move your car at night until all lights are on.

When forced to pull off to the side of a highway at night, many motorists will remember to leave their lights on. This, however, is not enough protection. Also turn on the dome lights in the vehicle on such occasions.

SUBURBAN - BROWN CHICAGO (UP) - A new salary ment and concern, the committee schedule which would boost teach said, that many of its teachers had ers' salaries in suburban Winnetka no cash reserves and had to supto a "par with earnings in other plement their income in other agreement providing for American ent pavilion on the fair grounds fields has won the unanimous sup- ways. port of a citizens committee and a board of education.

Terming the program a "break through" in the tradition of teachers' wages, the Citizens' Advisory Committee on Teachers Salaries said the salary schedule would permit exceptional school teachers to hope for a $12,000 annual income.

The Board of Education said the recommended schedule has its "complete and wholehearted endorsement." Holders of bachelor degrees would earn beginning pay oi $4,200 or about $300 more than the present annual starting rate.

The recommended schedule is in two parts, one of which is to be implemented over the next biennium. Under it, automatic increments would bring salary ceilings of $7,000 for bachelor degree holders, $7,650 for holders of masters' degrees, another $300 for a master's degree plus a year of graduate study, and $9,300 for a Ph. D.

The second phase of the schedule provides for potential maximum salaries for some teachers of $10,000 and $12,000 by 1968.

The committee said, however, the second part was subject to annual re-examination by the board-and was only a commitment insofar as it was re-adopted yearly.

"We buried him with Pete Thurman on the slope above the Thurman ranch house. Jack Hume, two of his men, Sam Lester and I took care of that. We did the quick about it, for there were the womenfolks and their necessary belongings to be moved to Jack Hume's place, where they'll be safe. Now I've come after you." "You'd take me somewhere?"

"Yes. For the present, to my ranch. I got a mule outside for your gear, and a horse for you to ride. I sent Sam Lester on ahead with the pack string."

If I keep on talking of practical things, he thought, maybe she won't go to pieces like a couple of the others did.

Kitty Dutra showed no sign of going to pieces. Instead, she moved over to the window and stood there with her back to him.

"Don't wait for me to start crying, Ward. I'm not going to. Perhaps I've been a fool in many ways, but never a hypocrite. You see, I've long since done my weeping. Oh, I'm not blaming Nick for a single thing, understand. But there's been nothing between him and me for a long time, and there never was anything really solid or worthwhile there. Now, Nick is gone. If it does any good to be sorry, ther I'm truly, truly sorry for him. But I'm done with weeping." She was silent for a moment, then added, "I can't go with you, Ward. I'll stay here."

"No," he told her bluntly. "Get your gear ogether."

She shook her head. "You've done far too much for the Mc-Cloud family already. When I think of all you did for my father, for that worthless brother of mine! And what thanks did you ever

"None of which has a thing to do with my taking you with me," said Sebastian gruffly. "You know you can't stay here alone from now on."

"Neither can I stay at your ranch," she retorted.

"No more nonsense. You can stay on until you get a straight trail for the future figured out." She came around to face him, studying him intently.

"If I could just be sure it wasn't "Pity! What the devil has pity got to do with it? A Modoc raid made a widow out of you. And like always, when open Indian trouble breaks, the white renegades start prowling, figuring that any shady business they might stir up, will be blamed on the Modocs. You're a lone woman, way off by yourself. And you can't stay here.' Abruptly she was agreeable. She moved swiftly, making up a big bundle of her things.

It was a full half hour after midnight when they reined in at Sebastian's-headquarters, to find lights still burning and people waiting for them. Sam Lester and old Bob

It must pay as it goes and its books must be balanced every year. All money spent by the city must be approved by the United States Congress, and since the taxes collected in the city are never sufficient to meet expenses, Congress must also provide any additional funds needed.

CHICAGO OF — The American League's official 1958 schedule today called for 249 night games the highest total in the history of the circuit.

Baltimore is scheduled for the most night games at home, 48. an increase of one over last season, while Kansas City has added four arc-light contests for a total played during a single season was school.

In keeping with the general ber of night games each year Washington added three for a total of 41 while the Yankees also increased their schedule of night games by thre for a total of 20.

The Yankees called their increase "a modest one" in view of the fact that both the Dodgers and Giants left New York for greener pastures in California.

Detroit and Boston held the line with the same night game schedule they had a year ago. The Tigers are scheduled for 21 night games and the Red Sox 18. Cleveland, with 30 night games, will be playing one less than last season.

Washington officially opens the season one day earlier than the Sox, April 14.

The rest of the circuit swings into action April 15 with Detroit second openers, on April 18, spread criticism of the school. Cleveland will be at Detroit; Chicago at Kansas City; and Baltimore at New York.

Highest Road

Highest automobile road in the United States winds up to the summit of 14,260-foot Mount Evans, Colo., where scientists study cosmic rays in a University of Denver laboratory.

Some 92,000 vehicles cross the San Francisco-Oakland Bay bridge daily.

NO "STRONG EFFORT" - The federal government has not made, as yet, a "strong effort" to provide American scientists with research facilities to match Russia's. So says Dr. Alan T. Waterman, above, director of the National Science Foundation. He told a House government operations subcommittee that the budget bureau cut the foundation's basic research funds by 50 per cent in fiscal '58 and knocked 20 per cent off the amount asked for fiscal '59

More than 3,000,000 Americans live in house trailers in 12,000 mobile home parks throughout the United States.

Women make the best watchmen---they are either watching their figures, watching their complexions, or watching for a man.

26th ANNUAL MEETING

ANNUAL MEETINGS are important

Yes, it's Annual Meeting time again . . . another year will soon come to a close. And with its completion comes the annual meeting of your farmerowned and controlled company.

Circle the date on your calendar and plan to attend. MOST OF ALL . . . this meeting is important to you. It is your opportunity to exercise your right of ownership and control . . . it is also your opportunity to make a real contribution to the welfare of your farm neighbors.
